

About SPIK

SPIK is a national knowledge transfer platform which addresses the subjects of police information technology, operative communication and combating cybercrime. SPIK targets computer specialists and executive management within all police forces, the information technology and communications industry, and economy and politics.

The aim of the annual Congress is to familiarise those involved with new ideas, developments and products. The event is organised by the Swiss Police ICT Association, representatives from various police forces, the Federal department for civil protection and various information technology companies.

A political advisory board includes representatives of the five Federal government parties, a senior civil servant and a police commander. The board serves as a political consultative organ and a link to politics.

When current political issues involve both public safety and computer science/communications, Swiss Police ICT may be requested to participate in collaborative procedure.
